MAINE AUTOMOBILES TO HAVE NEW PLATES NEXT YEAR

Motor vehicles registered in Maine for 1956 will display new semi-permanent plates. Every vehicle, except dealers, trailers, and motorcycle side-cars, will have a plate on the front and a plate on the rear.

The 1955 Legislature provided funds for a new issue of plates beginning with the registration year of 1956 and the new program is expected to run for a period of six years, with re-validating inserts provided for 1957 and succeeding years of the plan. These plates will be 6 inches by 12 inches and will be in conformity with the uniform plate size adopted by the jurisdiction of the United States and Canada. Yellow "Scotchbrite" will provide the background color and the numerals of the plate will be black; aluminum is being used in the production of all plates being processed at the Maine State Prison.

People wishing to retain their present plate numbers for the 1956 year must file their applications and payment with the Secretary of State prior to November 1, 1955—providing such numbers fall within the limits of the 1955 plates to be provided for that year's issue. COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

As many of you know the Town voted to accept the proposed change in Elm Street at the recent Town meeting. The possible gift of the plot of land at the intersection of Broad and Paradise Streets was rejected by the same meeting. It was the feeling of the voters that this very nice lot would serve the town better if used as a building lot rather than a park. The building lot would of course bring a taxable income, certainly, this will be true if a nice home is placed there. The Park would naturally mean a continued expense.

J. W. O'Donnell Jr., representative of the company engaged to do the mapping for the revaluation, was a recent visitor in the office. We are in hopes for a clearer day soon so they can take the aerial photos for the mapping.

ONLY 10 DAYS MORE FOR CAR INSPECTION

"Less than two weeks to get that inspection sticker!" Our Governor's Committee on Highway Safety reminds us we are obligated by law to have our cars inspected twice each year at an official Maine inspection station. Inspection periods fall during the months of April and October.

"This semi-annual inspection is a valuable safety measure," they continued. "By making this inspection a legal obligation, Maine makes certain that vital safety equipment is checked at six-month intervals."

Failure to procure an official sticker before the last few days of the month means that the driver will be forced to wait in line with others who have put off this responsibility until the last possible moment.

"Save yourself this inconvenience by taking care of this inspection immediately," they concluded.

Ideas from other editors

From the Fort Umpqua Courier, Oregon: Integrity is a noble word, even in its original meaning of "wholeness." A man is not a "whole" man if he has no deeply cherished ideals, or if he is not loyal to those ideals. Nor is he a "whole" man if he lets himself be so ruled by his own emotions and prejudices that he becomes a bigot, intolerant and incapable of doing justice to other people.

Integrity is not fulfilled merely by paying your bills and living up to the letter of your contracts, including the marriage contract. These are only a part of integrity. A man's integrity can be impaired if he is a wastrel of time or talents. We are tempted to say:

A man's integrity is measured by the courage and honesty he shows when he faces the great and little challenges of life. And perhaps the greatest test of integrity is humility, which Lincoln had in abundance.

Integrity is the sum of a man's honesty with himself and other human beings, and in the best of us it never quite adds up to a perfect score. It is something to strive for. No matter how humble your position, it enables you to look any other man in the eye any time even if you still owe him a $100. It enables you to conduct your life without endless apologies or explanations. From the Vista Press, Vista, Calif.—A report issued by the San Francisco Commonwealth Club on a study of decentralization comes up with the summary: "Moderate-size communities provide better living and working conditions than metropolitan centers."

We've known that for years, and it's about time that these city people find out more about these communities.

Not only do we have better working and living conditions but we enjoy the added blessings of a fullness of light through closer associations with our fellow men, the opportunity to see the Golden Rule put into daily practice, and to appreciate the results of community cooperation, effort and loyalty.

These are but a few of the many desirable points of the small and moderate-sized community. The mere fact that we "belong" has a feeling of warmth. The happiness or sorrow of one family is felt throughout the entire community, and to the extent of it is not who, but what the individual is, that counts. Race, creed, or politics, we work together. We can learn to recognize and forgive our neighbor's failings, and he in turn does the same for us, for we know and respect each other.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

What is education?

That question is susceptible to many answers. An interesting one is given by U. S. Commissioner of Education Brownell in an article appearing in Today's Health, a publication of the American Medical Association. To him, education is "an investment in the guidance and growth—mental, physical and spiritual—of today's children, youth and adults." He adds, "It is an investment protected always by community tradition, local pride and responsibility for the school."

Commissioner Brownell's article bears the title "Challenges to Our Schools." As everyone who reads the papers and magazines knows, these challenges are very real and in many instances severe today. Their most obvious manifestation is found in overcrowding of the schools and an insufficiency of teachers and classrooms. In addition there are less publicized problems—such as that of health, with which the Brownell article is largely concerned.

Our population growth has been enormous the census rolls have swelled by 5,000,000 in less than two years. The Commissioner quotes a government official as stating that "the stark has displaced the eagle as the most representative American bird." The 1955-56 academic year will see a record school enrollment. There will be some 34,718,000 youngsters in the public and nonpublic elementary schools, and an additional 2,339,000 students in colleges and universities.

And this, the Commissioner points out, is only the beginning. When the 1959-60 school year rolls around, it is estimated that the public elementary and secondary schools alone will have an enrollment of 37,863,000, and students in nonpublic schools will up the figure to 42,818,000.

Statistics, Commissioner Brownell observes, "challenge leaders in health as well as those in education." Some 28,000,000 Americans are estimated to have some known chronic disease, physical impairment or mental disorder. It is predicted that one in 12 of U. S. children will spend some time in a mental institution. Accidents claim the lives and health of the young as well as their elders, which has led to many schools adopting motor vehicle instruction as part of the curriculum. Juvenile delinquency is a related problem which grows steadily more critical. Dr. Brownell believes that "educators and health specialists can probably do much in a preventative way." There are nearly 8,000,000 children who need specialized educational attention because of physical, emotional, mental and other abnormalities. And we still have a long way to go in eradicating illiteracy. To quote him again, "We have a nationwide problem of educating the physically and mentally handicapped child as well as the especially gifted child. We still have much to do to improve school health programs."

The Commissioner, clearly, is optimistic as to future achievement. Great progress has been made in school health programs, and the remaining problems are solvable. These problems are, he says, of concern to federal and state governments—"but primary responsibility for their solution rests with local communities and citizens."

"Now, as a freedom-loving American, let's say that this bill represents your right to work—and those windows, the work!"

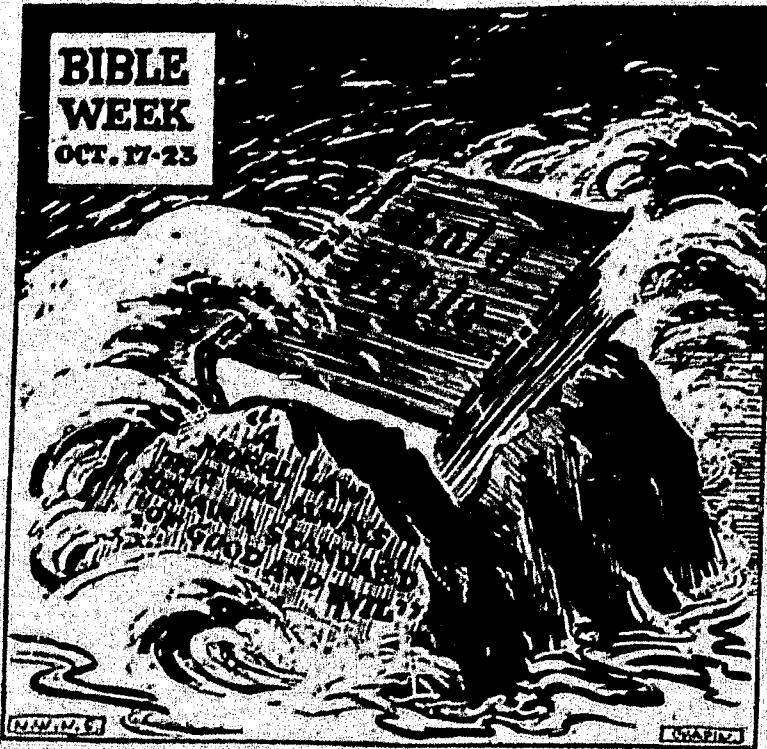

No matter how clever you may be at judging distance, that judgment becomes less trustworthy at dusk and after dark. For this reason, our Governor's Committee on Highway Safety issues this special warning for pedestrians: don't try to judge the speed of approaching cars by their lights alone. Be absolutely certain that you have more than enough time to reach the other side before crossing a highway or a street at night. If there is any question—wait until you are sure!

THE AMERICAN WAY

Revival of Feudalism

by Maurice R.
Franks

EDITOR'S NOTE: Maurice R. Franks is President of the National Labor-Management Foundation and Editor of its official publication, PARTNERS.

Historically, our labor unions were of one flesh with the Third Estate—the common people, the people who were born with no silver spoons in their mouths, the people who had to work hard for a living. Historically, our unions represented the workingman's combined resistance to employers who were harshly exploiting him. Our unions were the voice and the growing force of democracy, challenging the power of employers, as a kind of industrial nobility, to control human rights and dictate terms of employment.

The lords of industry's "First Estate"—imbued with the character and led by the spirit of Simon Legree—fought hard to resist the course of human history. Many heads were cracked and much blood flowed. But step by step, labor's Third Estate moved forward, threw off the economic chains encircling all works and by law gained the right to bargain collectively by means of their own choosing for wage rates and terms of employment. Added in its struggle by the church, the lords of the "Second Estate," and by the press, the so-called "Fourth Estate," worker at last became in public recognition what he always had been in economic fact—the employer's full partner in production.

Thus ended the age of industrial feudalism. Thus ended the basic, ideological struggle between the directors and operatives of industry. And America became the richer for the experience. Our economy was immeasurably expanded. With purchasing power now effectively extended throughout our society, the worker became a purchaser of his own production. Industrial imagination was fired and technology brought into being the age of "more and more and more"—of more and more to be had, and of more and more who could have.

Everybody gained through the economic emancipation of the Third Estate, including the industrial descendants of the late and unlamented Simon Legree.

Now the important fact to be considered in this review of the human phase of the industrial revolution that so transformed our economic way of life is this: The labor movement which was so largely responsible for his transformation began and for long years continued as a spontaneous and wholly voluntary expression of worker solidarity. Workers banded together as brothers in a common cause, formed their organizations, elected their leaders and followed them. If need be, to the death. They voluntarily made every sacrifice they were called upon by their brotherhood to make. But no man was beaten over the head to make him join a union not of his choice; and no laws existed to deny him a livelihood if he consistently declined membership.

Traditional unionism was a privilege, an honor. The brotherhood and their leaders undertook and were able to gain new members without coercion—by unfolding and proving the merits of organization.

There were holdouts, of course. But the "free rider" wasn't hoisted out of his employment; it was enough to consider him peculiar, as something of a social outcast. And meanwhile, the "free rider" was always a likely prospect to work on and enlighten and hope eventually to interest. Even more important, these holdouts provided the union with challenging opposition, whose existence moved the directors and operatives of industrial services. There are stories galore of union leaders, long before the day of legalized compulsory unionism, who boasted their membership organization a handful to hundreds—yes, thousands—in less than a day, after proving the worth of their organizations.

It is an altogether different story today. The day of unionism as a free and proud expression of the will of the Third Estate in industry is swiftly fading. What is obviously taking shape in the succeeding twilight is a brand-new political entity—new that is, on these shores. It is in effect a Fifth Estate—a rapid coming together and entrenchment of private labor leadership, with a powerful vested interest in our national political scene.

The evidence of this revival of feudalism within American industry is apparent in all top-level negotiations with management. It is apparent in all the towering structures of international unionism, wherein all power resides at the top—in the feudal castles of modern labor's dukes and barons. It is apparent in the bewilderment of the members at local-union level, vast numbers of whom carry cards only because the law and union-management contract compel them to do so.

In my next article, I'll discuss further how today's unionism is gnawing away at the roots of democracy.

"Darkness Hides Danger"—that's the life-line of the month from our Governor's Committee on Highway Safety. Fall days mean shorter days. That means that we shall be doing more and more of our driving during hours of dusk and darkness. Be especially careful during these hours—remember darkness hides danger.

Fort Payne, Ala., Times-New Era: "In a magazine article Allen W. Dulles, head of the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency, tells us that 'mass education in Russia may well become a threat to their own communist system of government.' There is more to this article than we can summarize here, but it should make sense that the better educated the masses of any country become the more they should be inclined to throw off the yoke of tyranny that a communist system puts on them."

Nearly every Maine county has an active Poultry Improvement Association open to all poultrymen. Frequent meetings with informative speakers and panel discussions afford poultrymen a chance to get together and compare notes.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

MRS. AILEEN HARRISON, R. R. #5, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, missed a great pleasure for years because of her fear of water. At eight years her sister, along with a group of older girls, took her to the beach. When they were ready to go in bathing, the girls all dressed in their lustre bathing suits decided they were going to duck her. Being much smaller and younger, she was taken kicking and screaming and fighting into the water and ducked. After that day it was years before she went in bathing again.

They have a summer cottage on Lake Erie, and spend a certain part of each summer at the cottage. Last summer she had her two little grandchildren with her, Billy, 5, and Pat, 6 years old. Billy would climb up on a high stone in the water and fall over backwards, and come up smiling. Pat insisted on trying to teach his grandmother the dead man's float, going over it dozens of times. But Mrs. Harrison just couldn't let herself go. The other adults in their parties always had such a grand time in the water, and don't think she didn't envy them their fun. But she was always left to play with the children.

Then one day she did it, and it wasn't so bad. She tried it again—the dead man's float. Every day that she went into the water and under she went. Now she had overcome her fear of the water—by just doing what she feared the most.

'56 Chevrolet sets new Pikes Peak record in top-secret test!

Not long ago a hush-hush, camouflaged '56 Chevrolet scorched the nerve-breaking road up Colorado's Pikes Peak for a new NASCAR* certified record—the first time that old King of the Mountains has seen a new official stock car record in years! And what a road! 170 chilling turns and no guardrails! It's the first and only time a new model ever proved itself such a great road car before its introduction! The '56 Chevrolet showed the kind of performance that makes driving safer and more fun. So wait for the car that beat the King of the Mountains!

The first meeting of the Fifth Grade Girl Scout Patrol was held Oct. 11 after school at the home of the leader, Mrs. Barbara Douglass. We followed footprints which finally led to the fireplace, where we built a fire with twigs and pine cones which we had gathered. Then we chose the following officers: Leader, Sue Kneeland; Scribe, Darlene Morrill; Treasurer, Judy Mylone. We talked about Girl Scout uniforms and badges. We played games and refreshments were served by Deedee and Norma. We decided to make scrapbooks for children in hospitals.—The Fifth Grade Girl Scouts met for their second meeting at the home of Mrs. Douglass. All nine members of our patrol were present. We began our meeting by passing in our maps we made from our house to the school and to the Scout meeting place. We looked over the scrapbooks the girls had started. Norma was chosen to be the reporter. We went outdoors for games and meeting closed with a good night circle. We also learned three new kinds of rocks. —Norma Kimball, reporter.

Brownie Troop 1 met on Tuesday with 20 girls present. Refreshments were served. The committee for next week is Sharon Coolidge and Daphne Davis. The girls worked in groups covering their treasure boxes.

Grade 7-B Brownies met at the home of their leader, Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, Tuesday afternoon. There were the usual ceremonies. The Brownie story was read. A walk in the woods to gather fir boughs and partridge berries was enjoyed.

Busy Beavers Patrol met at Faith Brown's and we are sorry that Faith has a slight cold. We went down to Songo Pond to Bea Brown's Camp and held short business meeting led by Julia Brown, Patrol Leader. There was some old business and we cleared it up. And some of the old business is if we want to finish our bicycle badge and decided we wanted to finish it and decided we wanted to bring a taste bite lunch. We talked about Halloween and the party Nov. 1.

Sunday, Oct. 30, 6:30 p. m. we will come and decorate the camp. We are going to entertain little folks there, ages about 4-6. There was no business. We cooked pancakes over an outdoor fire and everyone agreed they were delicious.—Carol Koskile, Sec.

Brownie Troop 6 met with their leaders, Mary Paine and Sylvia Sloan. We had our business meeting and elected new officers for the next month. They are: President, Diane Lothrop; Secretary, Norma Sloan; and Treasurer, Cheryl Grenier. After refreshments we painted pine cones in preparation for the winter bouquets. Refreshment committee for next week will be Diane and Jane.

GOULD ACADEMY

St. Francis Game to Start at 1:45
Gould Academy will be entertaining a new opponent next Saturday as they meet St. Francis High of Biddeford. The visitors have a winning record and it looks like another tough assignment for the Huskies. Because of the length of the trip, game time has been advanced to 1:45 to allow more time for the return trip. The St. Francis squad will be guests for noon luncheon at 11:45.

Gould 15—Lyndon 14

In a closely contested game Gould Academy went down to defeat as the Lyndon Institute eleven rallied to come from behind for a 15-13 victory.

Gould took the lead in the first period as Jerry Smith plunged over from the 1 yard line culminating a 60-yard march. Al Lamson place-kicked the extra point.

Lyndon evened the score in the second period as Reg Welch passed from the 30 yard line to Mike Stevens in the end zone. Simpson kicked the extra point. The Vermonters winning 17-13. D. came in the third period after a 40-yard march. Simpson hit the center of the Gould line for 2 yards to cross the goal. He again kicked successfully leaving the score 14-7.

The Huskies came back with a rally of their own, marching 70 yards and finally scoring as Smith went over right guard for the tally. The kick was missed and Gould was behind 14-13. On the last play of the game Lamson was downed behind his own goal line which gave Lyndon the extra 2 points.

Jim Murphy was outstanding for the Huskies as he ran hard and well and proved a sharp defensive man behind the line. Dick Roberts proved a fine ball carrier and Jack Reid showed great improvement in directing the team from his quarterback position.

Gould Runners Not to Meet Stephens

The Gould-Rumford Cross Country meet which was scheduled for last Tuesday was cancelled at the request of Stephens High School. Injuries and lack of interest in the latter school reduced the squad to only three men and Athletic Director John Dickson found it necessary to cancel the remaining meets. Gould, however, has rescheduled the postponed Fryeburg Academy meet and will travel to Fryeburg this Friday.

The Gould Academy Cross Country team motored to Portland last Thursday where they won the meet by a score of 25-35. Philip Korhonen placed first in the meet and Richard Grover fourth.

The Gould JV football team journeyed to Rumford Tuesday afternoon and were defeated by the Stephens High JV, 30-0.

In a recent class meeting the junior class elected the following officers: President, Elizabeth Stevens; Vice President, Jack Reid; Secretary, Patrick Elliman; Treasurer, Walker Boebe.

The second of the School Assembly Service Programs brings to Gould on Wednesday, Oct. 26, at 8:10 a. m. a Negro story teller. James Titus is a great personality whose dramatic ability has been recognized nationally in the field of the platform and the theater. In 1946 he was judged the nation's best humorous speaker in competition with contestants from every state in the country. Mr. Titus' particular talent has given a new appreciation and dignity to the dramatic art of the Negro to audiences of all ages. His interpretation of Marc Connelly's "Green Pastures" is magnificent. The public is cordially invited to attend this performance.
